That Was No Otter, Daughter!

Otter? Shmotter! That's what Mrs. Alice Webber says. It was a polecat that bit seven-year-old Karen, she's convinced. So they don't live in B.C. So they came on a boom of logs and got hungry, that's what Mrs. Webber thinks. She's going hunting the pair of them she believes are in her neighborhood, armed with a tin of pepper and an electric torch. She'll stay out all night if necessary.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

'It Bit My Baby'

Mother Stalks 'Polecat'

When Mrs. Alice Webber heard the children screaming, she was not immediately alarmed.

But when seven-year-old Karen cried, "It bit me," she thought at once of a dog.

But it wasn't a dog.

"It was a polecat," decided Mrs. Webber.

B.C. government authorities say there are no polecats in this country. They are a European creature, of the family of the weasel.

"It was a polecat," said Mrs. Webber. "I looked it up in a book and there was the picture. The children recognized it, too."

After the animal had bitten small Karen, Mrs. Webber called police.

"If they had got here right away they could have shot it," she said. "It came back and walked past the house half an hour after it bit Karen. I saw it with my own eyes. It was brown.

"It wasn't an otter and it wasn't a raccoon. It was a polecat," she reiterated.

Police and museum authorities say there are raccoons in the area where Mrs. Webber lives, 1334 Burleith, close to the Gorge arm. Now and then there are otters in the water. But nobody has reported one of them attacking a child.

"The police didn't believe me when I told them it was a polecat. I'm furious. The hospital laughed at me, too." Karen got her bite treated as an emergency patient.

"Aunt Ethel (Miss Ethel Shields) kicked the polecat away from Karen," Mrs. Webber related. "That was about 1 o'clock. It came back half an hour later."

Mrs. Bessie Ferguson, 1326 Burleith, and another neighbor on Selkirk, saw a brown and black creature which tallied with Mrs. Webber's description of her "polecat," except in color.

This observation led Mrs. Webber to state: "There are two of them. It's probably the mating season and they're out in the bush. The one that bit Karen was probably the male. He'll be back where the female is and I'll be waiting for him."

Mrs. Webber plans to arm herself with a box of pepper and a torch and stalk the intruders.

"As long as the light's in their eyes they won't move," she said.

She didn't explain the exact purpose of the pepper. But, "I'll stay out all night if necessary," she promised.

The two small punctures in Karen's leg are not painful.

Arabs Accuse Israel Of Massing on Border

Attack on Jordan 'Feared Imminent'

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Jordan's Arab Legion was given standby orders Wednesday night because, said a Legion spokesman, Israel was massing armed forces along the Jordan armistice line.

But the Israeli foreign ministry here described the troop concentration report as "pure fabrication."

In Beirut, Lebanon, the Lebanese government held an emergency meeting and then issued a statement saying, "Is is feared that Israel may launch an attack on Jordan shortly."

MINISTERS CONFER

President Camille Chamoun conferred with Lebanese army and political chiefs and the Saudi Arabian and Egyptian ministers and the Jordanian charge d'affaires also attended the conference.

Arab radio stations said the Egyptian and Syrian armies were ready to go to Jordan's aid if she were attacked.

The president earlier Wednesday received the American and Vatican ambassadors in Beirut to protest to them about Israeli "aggression."

PLEA TO POWERS

He called on the United States, Britain and France—signatories of the tripartite declaration which guaranteed the Israel - Arab truce lines—"to intervene immediately" to prevent any violation.

The reports of Israeli troop concentrations are associated in Beirut with Israel's recently-announced intention to go ahead with the plan to divert the waters of the River Jordan, a project Israel stopped nearly three years ago pending consideration of the matter by the United Nations.

REPEATED WARNINGS

Jordan government spokesmen repeatedly have said that any Israeli plan to divert the waters of the Jordan—which flows through Jordan territory for 95 miles—would be considered an act of aggression.

Reports from the Jordan side of Jerusalem Wednesday night said everything was "normal" and the United Nations truce supervision organization was watching the situation.

The British foreign office in London said King Hussein had expressed concern to Britain about the possibility of Israeli military action. But it added Britain herself had had no direct reports of unusual troop movements.

Vice-Regal Exchange Suggested

OTTAWA (CP)—An Opposition member suggested Wednesday that Canada should exchange governors-general with other Commonwealth countries— even if it meant some future resident of Government House would be a man of a different color and religion.

The proposal came from Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) during Commons consideration of the spending estimates of State Secretary Pinard's department.

But he found opposition from party-mate J. Wilfrid Dufresne (PC—Quebec West) who said Canada should not go to other Commonwealth countries to find its governor-general.

Mr. Dufresne said he would have no objection if Prime Minister St. Laurent were appointed to succeed Governor - General Massey. He would even support the move if Mr. St. Laurent resigned as prime minister immediately.

PAST METHOD OUTGROWN

Mr. Nesbitt said Canada has "outgrown" the past procedure—before the 1952 appointment of native-son Mr. Massey—of having a continual string of appointees from the United Kingdom representing the Queen in Canada.

But he also did not think it wise to appoint a Canadian every time. That could lead to purely political appointments which would only bring lack of respect for the high office of governor-general.

The alternative was to exchange governors - general with other members of the Commonwealth.

Mr. Nesbitt said it might seem strange at first if Canada had a governor-general of "a different color and even a different religion." But Canada should show by deed that she fully supports the equality of man regardless of race, color or creed.

Alistair Stewart (CCF — Winnipeg North) said the government's own policies would prevent such a step.

If a Pakistani, Indian or Ceylonese ever were appointed governor-general "how in the world would he get past the minister of immigration?" Mr. Stewart asked.

Mr. Dufresne said the post should alternate between French- and English-language Canadians. That practice already was recognized in Parliament in connection with the appointment of the Speaker.

NEEPAWA, Man. (CP) — Fans at a baseball tournament here Dominion Day had some added entertainment thrown in when the plate umpire's pants fell down to his ankles and, unaware of his predicament, he kept on calling plays.

Asked why it took him so long to discover his pants had dropped, he replied that it was an unsettled afternoon and he thought there had been a sudden change of temperature.

South Africa Turned Down

LONDON (CP)—Britain Wednesday night delivered a refusal to South Africa's demand for sovereignty over Swaziland, Basutoland and Bechuanaland.

About 1,000,000 Negroes live in the three British protectorates. South Africa's Nationalist government says it needs the territories for strategic reasons and for resettlement of Negroes displaced by apartheid (racial separation).

Sailors, Liquor Do Mix

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP) — The Fourth of July turned out wet. A thousand American sailors felt dry. And there, tantalizingly close, was a bar — and not a bartender in sight.

So 25 American sailors ended up in the brig Wednesday night and the lord mayor of Portsmouth went to bed an unhappy man.

PARTY PLANS

The lord mayor, Councillor George Asquith-Leeson, decided to throw an Independence Day party for American sailors visiting Portsmouth with the U.S. Midshipmen's Squadron.

He also invited 1,000 of Portsmouth's prettiest girls.

He had non-stop music, plenty to eat — and cups and cups of tea and coffee.

But by 4 p.m. it started to rain. By 4.30 it was pouring. The band stopped. The girls ran for cover.

The goba ran — for the untended bar.

TEA TENT EMPTY

By the time the party organizers spotted a remarkable absence of sailors from the tea tent, the damage was done.

Two hundred and fifty bottles of beer. Thirty bottles of whisky. Forty bottles of gin. Fifty bottles of sherry — all gone.

Someone sent for the military police and the party broke up quickly.

New Military Draft Bill Rammed Through Bundestag

BONN, Germany (AP) — The West German Bundestag in a stormy session Wednesday gave a smashing vote of approval to compulsory military service.

The 202 opposition deputies in the 487-member Lower House walked out angrily near the close of the all-day debate.

In one of the most bitter fights in the six-year history of the Bundestag, tempers flared and deputies shouted as the government and opposition parties battled over the bill.

The crucial vote came on the first paragraph. This states that every West German male over 18 will be subject to draft.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's supporters snowed under the opposition on this vote. Then they beat back every attempt to change the measure.

The opposition deputies boycotted the votes on the bill's final paragraphs to protest what they called the refusal of the government parties to consider seriously any changes in the legislation.

The draft bill would make 12,000,000 West German men liable for compulsory military service. In war, men up to 60 could be called. In practice, only youths who have passed their 19th birthday will be drafted.

Despite Adenauer's absence on a state visit in Rome, his three coalition parties solidly voted for the bill after attacks from the Socialists, the Free Democrats and the Refugee party.

But the government deputies were clearly championing an unpopular cause.

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The Syrian press published reports Wednesday that the United States has negotiated a 99-year lease for a naval-air base at Alzaban, Qatar, an oil-rich sheikdom on the Persian Gulf.

The reports said the United States paid Emir Ahmed Ben Ali Thani, ruler of Qatar, $100,000,000.

In Washington, information officers at the state department said they knew nothing of such a deal.

Gun-Fighters Both Die

Blazing Bullet Battle Ends Feud

STILWELL, Okla. (AP)—A blazing post-election gun duel early Wednesday ended the lives of Adair County Sheriff Chester Crittenden and his victorious political opponent.

State crime bureau agents and county authorities patiently questioned numerous persons in this small eastern Oklahoma hill town, trying to learn what was behind the bullet battle between the handsome 51-year-old sheriff and Bob Alberty, 32.

Jailer Ike Martin Jr., 25, reported to have been the only eye-witness to the death duel, was only inches away from Crittenden when slugs from Alberfty's gun ripped into the officer's body outside the jailer's courthouse apartment.

Martin said Crittenden had arrested Alberty on a complaint he had been carrying a gun.

He said Crittenden was shot as he strolled down the hallway of Martin's apartment on the courthouse's third floor. Martin recalled the shooting in these words:

"Bob was in my kitchen with the lights out when Chester walked up the jail hall.

"As Chester passed the door going toward our other room, Bob fired twice and I think one bullet missed. The other got him in the chest. The sheriff staggered down the hall, dropped his gun, then picked it up and returned to the kitchen door."

Martin said there was another exchange of fire and one of the sheriff's bullets tore into Alberty's skull. Another of Alberty's bullets then found Crittenden's body, Martin said.

Eskimos Rise With Biscuits

TORONTO (CP) — A biscuit being prepared for distribution to Eskimos living in the Canadian North should add two inches to their stature, F. J. G. Cunningham, federal director of northern affairs, said Wednesday.

The biscuit, approved after several years of experimentation, is to supplement the Eskimos' unbalanced diet, he said.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

A NEWSPAPER man restrained himself just in time from a foolish blunder during Sloan commission hearings the other day.

He noticed the chief justice waving with a kind of beckoning motion. He blinked. The chief justice waved again, more sharply, but it seemed to the reporter that he added a genial flourish at the end.

The gesture was apparently aimed toward him. Judges and commissioners are dignified men, not given to issuing cheery greetings from the bench; but after all, if a judge did choose to wave it would be rude—perhaps in contempt of court—to ignore the salutation.

My friend was just about to wave back, when the thought occurred to him that the gesture was aimed over his head. He turned and saw that the door was open. He closed it. The commissioner nodded approval.

The reporter passed his hand over his brow, and congratulated himself for avoiding a faux pas almost as grave as throwing paper airplanes in church.

* * *

"Pasteurization" is a fighting word to many people. When I suggested to a friend that raw milk should be safe enough, providing that dairies were strictly inspected, he snapped back that he wouldn't touch raw milk if they piped it into his house.

"I contracted tuberculosis from raw milk when I was a boy in Fort Frances, Ontario," he said. "It was a tuberculin-tested herd, and everything else. Half a dozen other kids also got it. The outbreak was traced to the dairy, and there was no mistake about it."

Another man argues that pasteurized milk can also be infected. It is true that some epidemics—for example, the Montreal outbreak in 1927—have been definitely traced to a carrier employed in a pasteurization plant, where the equipment was faulty.

But surely there is no doubt that when the process is properly carried out, the odds against infection go down a great deal. So the experts declare, and I am more inclined to take their advice than the advice of laymen.

The "freedom of choice" argument scarcely holds water. Our freedom is restricted in a number of ways for our own good, and if the majority feels (after getting expert advice) that another restriction is needed, the minority finds itself in a weak position.

Make Rare Award Commons Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — A succession of Progressive Conservative Commons members said Wednesday the government should pull out of the closet an award to outstanding Canadians which it created in 1943 and never used.

They referred to the Canada Medal, an award created by order-in-council during the Second World War.

John Diefenbaker (PC — Prince Albert) said the award is in keeping with the democratic tradition and yet "set aside people who make a great, abiding and significant contribution to Canada."

The Canada Medal had been brought forward with great enthusiasm by the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Why was it that the government ever since had "revulsion" against using it to recognize Canadian achievement?

Mr. Diefenbaker asked how many medals are in existence.

"It's the scarcest decoration in the world," interjected Citizenship Minister Pickersgill, former secretary of state and one-time secretary of Mr. King.

"It's almost a collector's item —that's how scarce it is," replied Mr. Diefenbaker.

NICOSIA (AP)—Exhausted firefighters Wednesday night brought under control a huge forest fire which has been ravaging west Cyprus for four days.

Red Poles Purged As Rebels Hit, Run

BERLIN (UP) — The Communist Polish government has arrested "scores" of Red party officials, soldiers and police for siding with the rioters in Poznan, returning Western travellers reported yesterday.

The crackdown turned into a purge in Poznan while Polish troops, armed with machine-guns, patrolled the 275-mile Warsaw-East Germany railroad line to cope with possible other outbreaks.

Rebel bands were reported engaging in "hit-and-run" raids in other cities, particularly around Cracow, Bialystok, Lublin and north of Poznan.

"The government seems to fear partisan bands will attempt to disrupt traffic by blowing up bridges or trains," a traveller said.

The arrests number in "scores," but there were no accurate figures. The seizures swelled the ranks of the 1,000 persons already jailed as suspected ringleaders of the rebellion.

RANKS SWELLED

The arrest of Communists was foreshadowed earlier by a denunciation of party members who capitulated to the rebels.

"They will answer for their actions," said the party newspaper.

Fifty miles north of Poznan, troops were believed pursuing remnants of a rebel band flushed from a forest.

For the first time, the Reds referred to the uprising in Poznan as a revolt, and charged that it was financed by the United States.

The joint party-government committee appointed to investigate the uprising, ordered the arrest of police and soldiers who collaborated with the workers, either actively or passively, it was reported.

"The arrests are continuing and no one knows when they will stop," one traveller said.

Ches' Homework Keeps Him Busy

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I can't imagine how my friends in the medical profession ever find the time to keep themselves up to date on the new discoveries and techniques in medicine. They must have to do an enormous amount of reading of their medical journals to keep abreast of the new antibiotics and drugs.

Heaven knows, it is becoming difficult enough in the comparatively simple field of gardening to know what's what in bug killers and fungicides. Newer and more effective preparations are coming over the pike faster than a fellow can keep up with them.

Chlordane, hailed as the long-awaited soil insecticide which was to rid our gardens of cutworms, wireworms and other underground pests, has already been replaced by Aldrin, and now Aldrin looks as if it might have to give way to Heptachlor. For the above-ground pests, DDT is already old-fashioned, with DDD, Malathion and Dieldrin taking its place.

Learning what to use and when to use it is only half the battle. Like memorizing the exceptions to the rules in French grammar, you have to learn what not to spray with the new chemicals.

MUST NOTS

You mustn't use D.D.T. on cucumbers. You mustn't spray junipers with Malathion, nor use D.D.T. on potatoes, while the wonder fungicide, Captan, is poison to the d'Anjou pear tree, that variety and no other. And so it goes.

What did we do before the wonder bug killers were discovered? Well, long before such things as Chlordane and D.D.T. appeared on the scene, gardeners were controlling insect pests reasonably well, and one old stand-by was a spray of ordinary soapy water.

It still works in an emergency, but don't use the kind of soap which is kind to your skin —to kill bugs, you must pick the strongest, yellow laundry soap you can find in the house —the kind which produces dishpan hands. It works even more effectively if you steep or boil some cigaret butts in it.

For an emergency fungicide to control such moulds as mildew on peas and rambler roses and gooseberries, you can use a spray of ordinary washing soda dissolved in water at the rate of one cupful to the gallon. It doesn't give very lasting protection, but at least it will keep things under control until you can get something better.

OLD TEA LEAVES

To kill off marauding slugs, snails and cutworms, use old tea leaves, sweetened with a little sugar or syrup, and mixed with almost any kind of poison you happen to have in the house.

Canned heat is an especially good poison for slugs, but in an emergency you can use Paris green, rat poison, ant poison, bichloride of mercury, or anything else that's handy. Put the poisoned tea leaves in little piles under flower pots with one edge propped up off the ground a bit, so that friendly animals and birds can't get at the stuff.

For a fumigant, to keep bugs out of cold frames, use a handful of leaves of the Cherry Laurel, pounded and bruised in an old saucer and set in the corner of the frame. The bruised leaves give off small amounts of cyanic acid gas, euough to deter any insect that ventures inside the frame.

Looks Like 80-Year-Old

Girl Trapped Nine Days Under Car

SALT LAKE CITY (UP)—A pretty 18-year-old girl pinned under wreckage of her dead fiance's car without food or water for nine days in a deep Utah canyon is recovering slowly from her ordeal.

Highway patrols rescued the emaciated girl, Jean Margetts of Sunnyvale, Calif., Tuesday night after a search plane spotted the wrecked car just before sundown. She was pinned under a log on which the car rested.

The body of her sweetheart, James B. Hixon, Jr., of Salt Lake City, lay 15 feet away. They were to have been married in September.

He apparently was killed the night of June 24 when the car left the highway and rolled 300 feet down the steep canyon slope into a grove of aspen and oak. The couple was returning from a Sunday fishing trip.

At first the rescue party thought the girl was also dead.

"It was incredible. You can realize how stunned we were to see her move and begin to cry" said a policeman.

"She told me she was cold. I got a blanket and covered her," he added.

The young woman was taken to hospital, where her condition was reported "fair."

"She isn't capable of answering questions yet," said an attendant.

When found the girl looked more like a sickly woman of 80 than a pretty teenager, rescuers said.

Uprooting B.C. Japanese 'Rotten Deal', House Told

OTTAWA (CP)—British Columbian C. L. Jones said Wednesday there is still dissatisfaction in his province over the deal Japanese-Canadians there received when the government "in panic" moved them inland during the Second World War.

The CCF Commons member for Okanagan - Boundary said their property, seized by the custodian of enemy alien property, had in many cases been sold "for a song" and there had been a number of claims for compensation.

"I'm satisfied to this day they got a rotten deal."

Mr. Jones asked State Secretary Pinard to produce figures showing the total of claims by B.C. Japanese-Canadians and the amount paid, refused and outstanding. The minister said he would get the figures.

Erhart Regier (CCF—Burnaby-Coquitlam) said a commission which examined the claims of Japanese-Canadians whose property had been seized was "nothing more or less than a whitewash for the actions of the custodian."

He wanted information as to what action, if any, had been launched against those who "shamefully" took the property of the Japanese-Canadians.

In one case, he said, a warehouse full of furniture simply disappeared.

Mr. Pinard said any prosecutions would be the prerogative of the justice department but he would make inquiries.

Living Costs Leap Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Food prices jumped sharply in May, boosting living costs to a near high and federal authorities said Wednesday that market pressures have developed which may lead to further increases.

However, they doubted that the boosts, following more than three years of price stability, would bring another serious bout of inflation such as that which swept North America during the 1950-51 period of the Korean War.

Food price increases are mainly of seasonal nature and likely will ease with a bountiful fall harvest, they said. Production and earnings of consumers were increasing, keeping fairly steady pace with the demand for goods. Consumer purchasing power had in fact been rising in the last few years.

Nevertheless, the sudden, sharp changes in May caught many federal experts by surprise. The consumer price index jumped by 1.2 points—the highest monthly rise in five years—boosting the cost-of-living yardstick to 117.8 from 116.6.

The May rise was propelled almost entirely by food prices.

Heavy Travel By Airline Set No Record

Air travel in and out of Victoria was heavy over the Dominion Day weekend; but it set no record with 98 two-way flights.

Trans-Canada Airlines officials said last night 2,404 persons travelled out of Victoria from Friday to Monday inclusive. But on the Labor Day weekend in 1955, 2,586 took flights out of Patricia Bay.

Incoming passengers are not tallied for the records but would probably double the figure for a total of 4,808 for June 29-July 2.

All but five of the 98 flights out of Patricia Bay were by DC-3 aircraft. The others were by North Stars.

Slack Wind Slows Sailors to Crawl

The curse of sailing—a dearth of wind—caused all series races to be called yesterday at the combined Pacific Coast Yachting Association and Pacific Yachting Association regatta.

The yachtsmen, making the best of the situation, occasionally set up a raucous chorus of horn-tooting, smoked dozens of cigarets and strained to catch the tiniest breath of air.

Not long after sailing out of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club anchorage in the morning, the small boats, such as flatties, snipes, penguines, 110s and International 14s, were being towed back to moorage.

NO PROGRESS

About 4:30, boats in the first and second division began to round Ten Mile Point, their race around a large triangle course called off when insufficient progress was made within the time limit.

Skipper of one craft reported it took him two hours just to make the starting line. After the start the wind was not strong enough to counter the tide, and he dropped anchor to stop going backward.

Heading into the yacht club wharf under power, a few American vessels let off firecrackers to celebrate their Independence Day.

On shore, the sailors, clad in everything from Bermuda shorts and toreador pants to skirts and suits, lolled on the lawn and looked over the boats, their dozens of masts like a leafless forest.

MacMillan Tells Probe

No One Need Be Hurt

Overcutting Can Be Licked

The present overcutting of timber in the Vancouver Forest District can be corrected within a reasonable number of years without putting anyone out of business or reducing woods crews, the Sloan royal commission was told yesterday.

Timber magnate H. R. MacMillan said all interests—government, public, and private industry—must contribute and cooperate to this end.

"Without closing down or shortening the yearly working hours of any mills of any kind, large or small, the annual cut of the Vancouver forest district can, within 30 years, be equalized with the sustained yield," he said.

Mr. MacMillan said it was quite possible that the objective could be reached in a shorter time.

He recommended that a suitable period, within which to do the job, be chosen, that present insufficiently restocked lands should be restocked within 20 years; that closer salvage logging be encouraged; that the export of logs and chips be reduced to a minimum under the law; and that if there was a shortage of logs for a few years the government should subsidize the shipment of logs from the interior.

Mr. MacMillan referred to the Vancouver forest district, which includes Vancouver Island, as "truly a principality or a state in itself."

About 10,000,000 acres in the district produced nearly 70 per cent of B.C.'s $610,000,000 crop of forest products last year and contained about 90 per cent of B.C.'s $1,000,000,000 pulp and paper enterprises, he said.

"It (the forest district) is the greatest single factor in supporting the people of this province," said Mr. MacMillan.

He recommended that no more forest management licences be issued in the province and said sustained yield was the objective which should be adopted by the present and future governments.

Mr. MacMillan said former attorney general Gordon Wismer had fought strenuously for the granting of a number of forest management licences in the congested district on the plea that they were existing industries which should be kept alive in perpetuity.

"By what right does this handful of operators claim that they should be relieved of the perils of competition and flagging energy?" demanded Mr. MacMillan. "It is a trite saying that competition is the life of trade."

Earlier in the day former Liberal MLA J. Gordon Gibson concluded his argument.

He contended that small loggers were in danger of being legislated out of business and that under the forest management licence system the small logger "must be pushed to the wall and survive only as hired labor or a sharecropper."

A "tremendously strong" police force was needed to see that operators who had forest management licences lived up to their agreements, he said.

"Evidence shows that the best timber has gone in forest management licences and the poorest is left for public working circles," said Mr. Gibson.

"The whole cream of the timber under government control on Vancouver Island and 80 per cent of the skim milk went to forest management licence holders," he continued.

He said evidence presented before the commission showed that the whole lumber industry wanted to return to free enterprise and open competition.

Commonwealth Conference

WHILE not too much is being said in a public way as to the agenda and discussions of the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers in London there is no doubt that this get-together will be productive of good for the member states of the union. Even if nothing of an advanced nature were decided, the round-table opportunity participated in by leaders from nearly every part of the globe will make for clearer insight and closer understanding. Canada is officially represented at the gathering by Prime Minister St. Laurent, who left a perplexing scene at Ottawa to be present at the conference.

Two major conflicts with vast upheaval in the fortunes of the world and all nations may have altered but they have not [illegible] the contribution of the Commonwealth to the times. The examples of sturdy spirit and wholehearted enterprise, a genuine love of freedom and an enlightened approach to democracy through parliamentary forms and responsible self-government have the more appeal today as the world has great need of such assets. Differences within the Commonwealth there may at times be, but the projection of what it stands for holds no threat to the world or to any nation in it. In stirring times, with change and advance bringing new conditions overnight almost everywhere, the Commonwealth itself cannot stand still. The London gathering of prime ministers is evidence of that sound ability to take counsel which has ever been the watchword of a stout-hearted union of free and fearless peoples.

The Last Summer School

VICTORIA will miss its "Summer School." Hon. R. G. Williston, minister of education, in opening the 43rd and final session of the school here, yesterday paid tribute to the high standard to which it had attained. Upwards of 1,500 teachers and student-teachers were registered for the beginning of the five-week period, not including some 200 who will take the companion course at the University of British Columbia's Summer School. Next year the teacher-training function will pass directly to the projected Faculty of Education and the annual congregations at Victoria will come to an end in this form. In contrast, however, Victoria will have its resident faculty establishment.

The change of method may help British Columbia to repair some of the gaps in its schooling system caused by a chronic shortage of qualified teachers. In place of the five-week summer session each year, undergraduates headed for the teaching profession will enroll directly under a faculty of education, and be guided towards a full degree in place of the diploma which the Summer School has offered. While there may be a weeding out of some who do not want to make teaching their life work, the new system should ensure that all enrolled will make the best use of their time in direct preparation for their first degree; with the door open then to go as far as they are able in post-graduate and other advanced studies.

If the plan succeeds it should give British Columbia a more stabilized field from which to draw for the expanding requirements of the school system. The Province in recent months has been recruiting teachers overseas in the United Kingdom to fill emergent gaps in the classrooms. A standard teacher-training course at university level should make this unnecessary in the future. Young Canadian men and women can be brought along in this province under the conditions they will meet when they take up their work in B.C. schools. In theory the plan shapes well, and there is no reason why its application should not prove a timely advance on the former system.

What Victorians will miss is the annual invasion of hundreds of young teachers and student-teachers from all over the province who in the past mixed in a good deal of fun with their labors during the summer sessions. They were keen and gay observers, appreciative of scenic Victoria and its environs and goodwill ambassadors for the community when they returned to their homes. To present and past enrollees, and especially to their painstaking and conscientious instructors through the years, this city will wish all good luck for the future. The "Summer School" is one convention that Victoria will miss.

A Pickle in Prospect

THE federal Liberal government is having its troubles. It was not enough that the tumultuous pipeline debate should reveal it at its most despotic, or that this week's resignation by the Speaker should place it in an awkward position. Now the U.S. steel strike threatens to undo the whole pipeline proposition. The situation is not without some irony.

If there was one thing pressed home on Parliament, and thus on the Canadian public, it was that Trans-Canada got the pipeline contract because they alone had the pipe. Later it came out that they did not have actual possession of it but they held options which were quite as good. Now the steel strike across the line, from where the pipe is to come, discloses that only one-third of the amount of pipe required has been manufactured — and when the rest may be delivered is anyone's guess. Some circles have indicated the strike may continue for weeks or months.

If the strike lasts that long Trans-Canada's building schedule will be completely out of gear. The time margin was slim at best if Winnipeg and Manitoba were to be served with gas before next winter sets in, a prime factor in the government's decision to underwrite the construction. Any political kudos arising out of early completion of the pipeline will thus be lost. All the hectic haste in stifling the pipeline debate and demeaning Parliament will have gone for nothing.

Another interesting factor is posed: Trans-Canada was given its needed loan on tight terms; the money had to be paid back by next spring else the government could take the pipeline over. If the strike prevents the line being built in time to become a revenue producer presumably the contracting company won't be able to repay the loan. What happens then? Does the government foreclose on a half-built project, or will the strike be interpreted as an act of God that warrants a re-writing of the contract? In such case this would mean another bill and another pipeline debate, and perhaps a few more closures. And since this might eventuate on the eve of next year's federal election, what a pickle for the St. Laurent regime!

Interpreting the News

Poznan Suppressions Hurt

By RICHARD O'REGAN
Associated Press News Correspondent

THE West's hand in dealing with Russia has been strengthened by the bloody Poznan revolt just at a time when it was needed most, observers in Frankfurt believe.

For months, neutralist voices have been heard in Western Europe clamoring for closer negotiations with the Russians. Millions have been wondering whether the Kremlin's smiles were not sincere, although Western leaders have doubted it.

In particular, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has been under pressure to waver from his rigid anti-Russian policies and his former cold war popularity has been gravely jeopardized.

* * *

The three-day Poznan insurrection—and its suppression by tanks and troops of the Russian-run Polish army—has stirred sympathy throughout the West. That sympathy has been heard not only from the masses of Westerners, but even from Communists like Giuseppe di Vittorio, head of the big Italian Federation of Labor.

The reported shooting of marching children, the defection of Polish tank soldiers to the workers—these are bound to raise doubts that things have really changed behind the Iron Curtain.

For Germany, the Poznan revolt has even deeper significance in that the prospect of reunification of the divided country may have become more distant than ever before.

* * *

Moscow and the Red regime in Eastern Germany also must have been thrown upon the horns of a dilemma. There has been much talk that Moscow would loosen its grip on East Germany to encourage negotiations between the two parts of the country.

But will Moscow and the East German rulers dare follow such a course now? Any great relaxation of existing terror rule might encourage the East Germans to try another revolt like that of June 17, 1953.

The Communist rank and file in France, Italy, Germany, Austria and elsewhere are likely to become even more critical of Soviet and national Red leaders when the full details of the crushing of the revolt become known.

In the Soviet satellites like Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia, it is likely the Red regimes will have a difficult time. They must somehow find a compromise between suppression of unrest and dissatisfaction and the need to keep alive the fiction of "democratization."

"Oh, we're getting a picture of the U.S., all right"

Thinking Aloud

Gerald Waring

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax — of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

I SUPPOSE in a sense since a name is merely an identifying feature it should not matter what one calls another, so long as the term is not obviously impolite.

It's custom that has ruled us, to the point where now it's often fashion to use the first (Christian) name almost immediately after being introduced.

This can be a nice heart-warming practice, but if you don't grow up with it sometimes it jars. After all it could be deemed a bit of a privilege to be allowed to call someone else by his first name.

Rotary magazine has a discussion on the subject, the pros and cons set out by two far-separated members—one in Australia and the other in England. Typically, perhaps, the Australian is for the first-name habit and the Englishman against it.

* * *

Myself I feel somewhere in the middle. I agree with the latter that the Tom, Dick or Harry development might just mean it's a lot easier to remember first names than surnames, and with the former it may ease the path of business or social relationships.

It can be overdone, of course. Such as when you hear children address their parents by their Christian names; I confess this always strikes me as carrying familiarity rather far.

And sheerly for identification purposes "Mother" or "Father" can't be beat.

The Australian mentions that Adam and Eve were quite happy to have just first names, although I wonder how he knows this. Perhaps they longed unconsciously for an additional name. As a matter of fact I checked with the Bible and I can't find how Adam even knew his name was Adam; the chronicle merely starts referring to him in that manner.

By contrast, making a neat point, the English Rotarian says history would have been robbed of an imperishable greeting had Stanley when he met Dr. Livingstone, said "Hyah, Dave!"

I wouldn't doubt, though, that the next lost missionary is met by his rescuer with a much less formal salutation than "Dr. Livingstone, I presume?"

Stanley used the form of his age, and his own upbringing.

* * *

The Rotary habit can be somewhat upsetting, as the Englishman maintains. In my own club here there are two members I for one couldn't possibly address by their first names, and assuredly never will even though I deny all precedent and practice.

I'd feel cheeky if I did, and I'm supposed to be a grown man too.

Rotary hasn't a monopoly on this first-name business; my own profession deals in it with happy and blithe unconcern. Which is quite all right if one remembers, as I say, that names are primarily an identification feature.

Otherwise dignity can be jolted. On the other hand "Mr." can be carried past the degree of intimacy that would justify use of the Christian name. When to change the style of address is for each man's instinct to decide. And the first use of a first name may not always be easy.

The Australian says the "first-time" effort is worth it; the Englishman says in effect go easy with the familiarity.

Reports from Ottawa

THE prime ministers' discussion in London this week of the Commonwealth split over recognition of Red China focuses attention on the Canadian position because our country is the leading "anti" in the group.

Britain, India, Pakistan and Ceylon have recognized the Peking regime. Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa continue to recognize the Chinese Nationalists.

One of the arguments which doubtless was aired in London is that Canada should face up to the reality that the Mao Tse-tung regime is the effective government of China.

Well, if the statements of Prime Minister St. Laurent and Foreign Minister Pearson in Parliament mean anything, the government already recognizes this. But diplomatic recognition is not something a country can demand as of right. And our government just doesn't think the time is ripe to exchange diplomatic representatives.

* * *

There are several reasons for this. First of all, it was the moral consideration of extending the hand of diplomatic friendship — which, of course, is not necessarily friendship in the usual sense—to a government which the United Nations has branded as as aggressor.

But that is not the deciding factor. The main consideration, Pearson has said, is Canada's enlightened self-interest. Now, there's no sign that Canada has much to gain either politically or economically by closer relations with Peking. Recognition won't open a big new market for our goods. It won't do much for the cause of peace. But it would put a strain on Canadian-American relations at a bad time—during an American election campaign.

Pearson has said that we are obliged to consider the interests and views of our allies in this matter. For years he's been trying to impress on Washington that it should consider our interests and views before acting in matters in which Canada is concerned.

The U.S. is very concerned over the whole China issue. Its government reflects American opinion that the Peking regime should be ostracized on moral grounds. Where then does Canada's self-interest lie?

* * *

The situation has caused Asian members of the Commonwealth to conclude that in this matter John Foster Dulles pulls the strings and Pearson shakes his head. This isn't true, but the impression does tend to undermine Canada's influence in capitals like New Delhi.

Canadian public opinion is not strong on the question. There was a poll in January on admitting Red China to the U.N. While that's a different proposition, I think it had some influence on the government in considering the question of recognition. Forty-four per cent of those polled were against admitting the Chinese Reds to the U.N., and only 28 per cent were in favor.

Opposition to dealing with Peking is especially strong among the political articulate French-Canadians, who resent the Reds' mistreatment of missionaries.

It's believed here that Peking is quite keen to get recognition by Canada. It hasn't been recognized by a respectable country since before Korea, and if Canada broke the ice it might start a run which could lead to U.N. membership.

But our government isn't interested in breaking the ice for the Chinese Reds. What it is interested in is furthering an easing of tensions between Washington and Peking, which would do much to stabilize the uneasy peace in the Far East.

When NOT to Swim

By GREGORY CLARK

IT IS important to know how to swim. But it is equally important to know when not to swim. And one of these occasions is when canoe or skiff upsets and the shore looks invitingly close.

In this year's Water Safety Week recently celebrated across Canada it was good to see that most demonstrations of water safety included urgent instructions to hang onto the upset craft and propel it to shore rather than try to swim to shore.

Nobody really knows the main reason why many persons who try to swim ashore from an upset craft are drowned in the attempt. It could be that the shock and excitement of the upset put an excessive strain on the heart, nerves and other organs, resulting in cramps or even heart seizure. Swimming is normally done at a chosen time of day, when we feel like going in the water, when meals are digested, and when we are in a good state of mind and body to undertake the natural physical shock of entering the unnatural element. But upsets often come when we are in no such prepared condition.

Fright puts a heavy strain on our entire system. In my newspaper travelling, and in soldiering, I have had countless experiences of being frightened. And in the half-dozen times I have been unexpectedly dumped in the water I have invariably been frightened. It comes naturally to the human species. It is nothing to be ashamed of. How, then, are we to persuade the young people, to whom being frightened is shameful, not to look upon an upset as a challenge to their courage? When scared, their reaction is to try to do what seems the manly thing. And they strike out boldly for shore.

Several agencies such as the Red Cross, some boat builders and other advertisers distribute stickers to put on boats warning against losing hold of the craft if upset. But a simple device that I noticed at the boat rental of a summer resort was a simple tag, such as is tied on luggage. These tags were inscribed in ordinary handwriting: "If upset, don't let go of the boat. Push it to shore." They were tied onto the gunwales, and common curiosity inspired all users of the boat to read the tag.

Many a young life can be saved by a little fussiness like this on the part of somebody in every family that owns a water craft.

B.C. Notebook

Socreds in New Zealand

By PETER BRUTON

SOCIAL CREDIT, its theories and just what it has accomplished in Alberta and British Columbia, is big news in New Zealand these days. Three recent copies of the Wellington Evening Post, published within the span of five days, devote no less than 10 full columns to the subject.

The reason, of course, is that Social Credit candidates, spouting monetary theories and the accomplishments of the governments of Canada's two westerly provinces, polled 11 per cent of the total vote in the last New Zealand general election.

Not one of the Socred candidates was successful, but the strength of the vote was such to frighten the leaders and members of both the Conservative and Socialist groups which make up New Zealand's traditionally two-party political system. The Conservative government under Prime Minister Sidney Holland immediately ordered a royal commission to look into New Zealand's monetary, credit and banking systems.

(Incidentally, the commission report stated that all was well with the present system and found no merit in the theories put forward by Social Credit.)

On top of this, the political hierarchy of all New Zealand parties toured British Columbia and Alberta in an attempt to find out how Social Credit clicked.

* * *

Anyway, it seems the Evening Post, which is a staunch Conservative party supporter as are all New Zealand dailies, commissioned James H. Gray, former editorial writer for the Winnipeg Free Press, to write "an objective and unbiassed account of Social Credit in Canada."

The full page article is about as unbiassed and objective as it would be hiring the advertising director of a certain company to write a fair account of the operations of a rival firm. Editorially, the Winnipeg Free Press is the voice of the Liberal party in western Canada.

Mr. Gray's article starts off this way:

"What is the prime requisite for success of a Social Credit government? The answer is simple—have some of the largest oilfields on the continent discovered under government-owned land.

"Twenty years ago the Social Credit movement swept Alberta on the wings of election campaign promises to pay every Albertan a $25-a-month dividend. No dividend was ever paid."

* * *

According to Mr. Gray, the Alberta government "makes an annual salaam to Social Credit theory in its budget speech. The federal Social Credit representatives "still talk to an empty House of Commons in Ottawa" about the need for monetary reform.

"The Alberta Social Credit administration was a product of the depression, pure, simple and unalloyed," wrote Mr. Gray. "The crowning irony is that its fabulous income from oil royalties has clothed it with a prestige that was a potent factor in enabling the British Columbia Social Crediters to squeak into office three years ago."

The article then goes on to outline some of the more unpopular legislation attempted by the Alberta Socreds between 1935 and 1937—and ruled invalid by the House of Commons.

It says oil, not an economic theory, enabled the Alberta Social Credit government to become free of debt—completely glossing over the fact that the Socreds came to power in 1935 and oil was not discovered until 1947.

* * *

Mr. Gray said the Alberta government itself hangs together only by reason of the prestige of Premier Manning himself, who is regarded as a pious and good man. Social Credit has hit the skids in Alberta and this may well be the movement's final term "because the Liberals now have an organization in Alberta."

Concludes Mr. Gray: "As an economic theory it (Social Credit) has been dead and buried for 15 years."

And with that the Wellington Evening Post was content to sit back, confident that Social Credit was dead and buried in New Zealand. But the paper did not count on the reaction to its readers.

Wrote one reader: "What is it about Social Credit that makes governments, royal commissions and responsible newspapers . . . go tumbling over themselves to thrust down the throats of the public the alleged evils of Social Credit? Until recently I was not interested in Social Credit but now it strikes me the critic protesteth too much. Is there something of which the present system is afraid? I for one intend to find out for myself."

Dozens of letters of the same tenor were sent to the paper.

I, all appears as if the Wellington Evening Post has committed the same blunder as certain newspapers in this country. In an attempt to ridicule and damn Social Credit it has simply driven more and more people into the ranks of the movement.

Letters to the Editor

City by Tally-Ho

A trip around Victoria by tally-ho is a most interesting experience, and gives an opportunity to see ourselves as visitors see us.

A little coaching of the drivers would do no harm — they try to introduce a light touch now and then, but are sometimes apt to go a bit overboard.

A few years ago I took the trip — most enjoyable, but a bit surprising.

As we suddenly came upon the pink castle from the next block it looked like something right out of a movie. The visitors were thrilled and wanted to hear something about it. We were told it was a home for old ladies who were not quite destitute.

Going through Beacon Hill park we quite ignored Robbie Burns so no joke was attempted, poor or otherwise. We passed very close to the beautiful Cameron music shell, which was quite overlooked. Passing the late wooden structure at Rupert and Humboldt we were informed it was a school for boys and girls. Someone wondered what St. Ann's Academy was — the driver evidently did not know, and just shrugged it off.

Cannot someone in the publicity department take the tally-ho drivers on a private trip around the city, and someone with a funny-bone think up a few wisecracks? Walt Disney might be over some time and see possibilities in the pink castle but feel it would be too bad to turn out the not quite desitute old ladies.

Mount Newton School

As Mrs. A. W. Siegle points out, the majority of the people in School District No. 63 were shocked that the board of reference and later the cabinet concurred in the dismissal of Mr. A. Vogee as principal of Mt. Newton school. Many of us are questioning the conduct of the inquiry and the fairness of the hearing.

One can but wonder at the cruelty and vindictiveness of the fates or the "powers that be" who would consent to bring a man's career to such an ignominious end after 28 years' service to a vocation in which he has, without a doubt, given his all with sincerity and integrity.

The irony of it all is the fact that it could be brought about by a man who is definitely his inferior both in ability and training. The last word has not been said.

V. E. VIRGIN.

What a Hope!

We now have the spectacle of Canada's Communist party, the LPP, "demanding" that Russia's new-style "leadership" give a fuller explanation of why Stalin was permitted to commit the crimes he is now accused of.

The LPP national executive does not consider adequate the explanations of Khrushchev that Stalin's personal weaknesses and shortcomings alone were responsible.

The Communist parties throughout the world must be having quite a time trying to salve their consciences after their support for 20 or more years of admitted murder, torture and despotism at its very worst, and on a mass scale.

Tim Buck said that tears should flow in the streets when Stalin died. Canadians were glad to see the despot go. Most of the things Canadians have thought and said about Russian Communism have proved right. The Russian Communists of the western world hope that time will overlook the so-called "errors" of the past. What a hope! They are now indelibly branded for what they are.

Develop Gorge Park If You Like Joint Committee Tells Kinsmen

Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee agreed in principle yesterday to the Kinsmen Club developing the whole of Gorge park if it wants to.

The committee also voted to contribute $2,500 toward the provision of bathing facilities in the park, at the old free public bathing beach east of Gorge bridge.

Vic Lea, Kinsmen Club president, said he would call a special meeting to get the club's decision.

Hugh Francis, who accompanied Mr. Lea to the committee meeting, said he was "pretty sure" the club would want to take on the development of the whole park, if anything, as a continuing project.

* * *

Committee members came to the conclusion that they and the tourist trade group of the Chamber of Commerce were waiting for each other in connection with the proposed construction of a parking area and observation ramp on top of Mount Tolmie.

The committee had voted earlier to set aside $3,000 toward the project, to be contributed after suitable plans had been submitted by the tourist trade group. The group informed the committee yesterday by letter that it was encouraged, and that the necessary plans would undoubtedly be prepared.

The committee decided to write back that it was waiting eagerly for the plans.

Detailed plans will be sought from a group of 20 residents of Townsend drive, west of Beaver lake who asked for permission to make a beach on that side of the lake at their own expense.

The trees that commemorate the dead of the First World War along Memorial Boulevard, Shelbourne north of Cedar Hill road, "will all have to come out" sometime, Henry Blakeney, Saanich works superintendent, told the committee.

He said the road was already too narrow for today's needs.

Mr. Blakeney was asked to report on the advisability of allowing a merchant to remove one of the memorial trees to

Contracts Let

$52,000,000 Going For Road Building

Total of more than $52,000,000 in contracts out of this year's highway budget has already been let, Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi said yesterday.

He made the statement after awarding Dawson and Wade a $4,000,000 contract for two sections of the Trans-Canada Highway in the Fraser canyon.

All the work is new except for about 10 per cent of work committed last year, the minister said.

"Only three months of the fiscal year have gone by and already I have committed more than half of the $80,000,000 budget," said Mr. Gaglardi.

He was unable to say how much of the work would be finished by the end of the fiscal year, March 31.

$125,000 Marked For Fort

B.C. and federal governments will contribute up to $125,000 for the partial restoration of Fort Langley in time for the province's centennial celebrations in November, 1958.

The decision was made yesterday in a meeting here between Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Resources Minister Jean Lesage.

JUST LIKE 1858

The fort will be restored as authentically as possible in the way in which it stood on Nov. 19, 1858, when the colony of British Columbia was born at Fort Langley and Sir James Douglas was inaugurated as first governor of the colony.

Building Falls Off

Living Space Too Plentiful

Over-supply of apartment accommodation is the reason for a fall-off this year in construction in the city, Mayor Percy Scurrah was convinced yesterday.

Through public works chairman Ald. Arthur Dowell, the mayor sought expert opinion after it was suggested last month that the decline might be attributed to zoning by-law setback and bulk-of-buildings restrictions.

Ald. Dowell checked with six leading builders. The mayor said yesterday all of them had expressed the opinion that "we are just slightly overbuilt (for apartment buildings) and that we just need to wait a bit until the demand catches up with the supply."

Mayor Scurrah said, however, that "we are going to watch the situation."

Building permits issued in June in the city were comparable in number with those issued in June, 1955, but the six-month total continued to sag more than a third below last year's.

PTRMIT VALUE

This June, 659 permits with a total value of $635,289 were issued; last June, 640 with a total value of $638,864.

In the first six months of this year, 3,564 permits were issued, totalling $3,569,962; last year, 3,284 totalling $5,459,612.

Sidney Thieves Net $120 in Two Entries

SIDNEY — Thieves obtained $120 in break-ins yesterday at Clair Downey's service station and at the home of David Peddle, Third street, RCMP report.

About $90 was taken from the service station, where entry was through a rear window, and $30 from the home, by entry through an unlocked door during daylight hours.

Police also reported theft of a $135 pair of binoculars from the car of James Randall at Sandown racetrack.

Farmers' Rally Slated July 17

The Northwestern Washington Experimental Station at Mount Vernon will hold its annual farmers' field day July 17. There will be conducted tours of plots and discussions on all phases of home and commercial agriculture throughout the day.

"MR. CHRISTIAN"

By Maurice Humber

As I stood on the shore & watched all those yachts,
I thot of that time, we knocked off the knots.
In a wild boat ride, a friend took me on.
We nearly piled up on the rocks of San Juan.
'Twas a racing skiff this fellow had bot.
The rigging & sails were somewhat shot.
And it surely was narrow, like a giant canoe.
Great gusts sprang up & ruffled the blue.
As he headed her out past Ten Mile Point.
Way over she keeled & strained every joint.
About sailing a boat, he knew less than me.
But he'd bot a blue cap & he called her "she."
And nautical phrases he flung around;
I very soon wished I was back on the ground.
With a knee o'er the filler, he hauled tighter the sail.
The breeze had now grown into a mild gale.
We swushed round the Point, like a bat outa h—,
I clung to the mast, as I heard him yell,
"Stand by, Mr. Humber, to lower the jib."
It thrashed about, & busted my rib.
I screamed out loud and hollered, "H-E-L-P."
When suddenly we spun in a great mass of kelp.
And the rope from the jib hit me smack in the eye,
When another order bellowed from this fool "Capt. Bligh."
"Raise the centre-board, Mr. Humber," this command a shout,
"I'll skim outa here, & bring her about."
We were finally rescued, & towed back to shore,
Where "Bligh" got hawled out by the Commodore,
I slunk away & quickly took off.
And for sport ever since . . .
I'VE GOOFED AT GOLF.

A PADRE IN PRINT

BY REV. WILLIAM HILLS

About the middle of April, Tom Taylor of the Colonist editorial page cried aloud for information. He wanted to know why parsons wore such a thing as a "dog-collar."

Has no one enlightened him yet?

Perhaps it was because priest and levite skimmed page four and turned to the comics for inspiration.

But I shall be Tom's "Good Samaritan" and try to pour the ointment of knowledge into the unkindly cuts of indifference and ignorance.

As a matter of honesty, let me confess that it took a prodigious amount of digging amongst the books to turn up any information on the subject, for the clerical collar, like Topsy, "jest grow'd."

In short, the "backside-foremost inversion" (to quote Thinking Aloud) of the stereotyped version of the plain white stock and collar which any sober and educated Englishman of the last century was accustomed to wear.

"From the mid-nineteenth century," says an authority, "not only the solid majority of the clergy, but all of them habitually wore the most simple and sober form of the ordinary middle-class dress of their day."

But it was not ever thus.

Green Shoes, Knives

In the 14th century, the then Archbishop of Canterbury found it necessary to attack ecclesiastics for dressing more like well turned out captains of the palace guards than simple followers of Christ.

Some had knives attached to their girdles, green shoes with crackowes (i.e.: long pointed toes), slashed belts studded with precious stones, gowns lined or turned up with fur or silk, rings upon their fingers, hoods "with liripipes of wondrous development," and finally, instead of the regulation tonsured head, hair as long and curly as a woman's!

If history be relied upon, however, even among the clerical magnifices of the later Middle Ages, none was a match for the princely ostentation of Cardinal Wolsey, the butcher's son come to greatness.

In view of this, what a drab lot we parsons are today!

Even the somewhat quaint and characteristic habit of an Anglican bishop in apron and gaiters is only the utilitarian riding dress of the early nineteenth century.

Well, why do parsons wear this clerical collar?

Simply because it is the badge of their calling and because, according to the highest demands of their vocation, they are never off duty.

So don't look upon the man with the "backside-foremost inversion" as a queer duck.

He's just in the rig of the day, as the sailors say.

'Let's Get Going'

Passmore Hustles Sewerage Project

Coun. Leslie Passmore said last night he will press Saanich council to call immediately for applicants for a cost accountant for the municipal engineering department.

He will also urge that the municipal engineer be asked to recommend a consulting engineer to study figures submitted by the Saanich public works department for completion of the sewer project.

Coun. Passmore has called a special meeting of the sewer and drainage committee for 9.30 tonight. He will make his suggestions to the committee and ask that they be passed on to council.

"This would mean a delay of three or four weeks on the project, but it is the best we can do," he said. "I want to make a move to get going on the sewers."

Reeve Arthur Ash and some other members of the council have insisted on delaying the restart of the sewer project until a cost accountant and engineering consultant have been employed, but Coun. Passmore has been calling for immediate action on the development which was stopped when over-expenditure was discovered.

Cmdr. Davis Promoted

Constructor Cmdr. Sturton M. Davis, 37, of Victoria, who has been Atlantic Coast construction department manager, will succeed Constructor Capt. Frank Freeborn, 52, of Halifax and Montreal, as principal naval overseer in the Montreal area.

Capt. Freeborn replaces Constructor Commodore Rowland Baker, 48, as the navy's constructor-in-chief July 16.

Thus the chief designer of Canada's ultra-modern destroyer escorts will be succeeded by the officer who supervised construction of the first of them.

PORT ALBERNI — City council has turned down a request from the Nanaimo Gas Co. for a gas franchise for Alberni for the present.

Fish Workers Will Hold Strike Vote

A strike vote to strengthen demands for wage boosts of 22 cents hourly will be taken tomorrow among 800 fresh fish and cold storage workers in 15 plants from Victoria to Prince Rupert.

The union rejected conciliation board recommendations for 9 per cent increases to men and 7 per cent to women, spread over two years.

Affected by the vote are the Ogden point plant of B.C. Packers, Ltd., Winter Harbor, Tofino and Port Alberni.

A return of the crisp iron play and accurate putting that made him one of Canada's top three amateur golfers two years ago, has brought Bobby Fleming back into the reckoning for [illegible] Cup team.

Bobby's latest win — a two-under par 142 — in the Cowichan Open is the third medal prize won in successive weeks by the Gorge Vale player. His previous successes were in the Zone 1 championship at Nanaimo and the West Coast Open at Port Alberni.

In addition Fleming this year has won the Victoria second winter medal, has been joint-medalist in the qualifying rounds of the Island Open and lost the City championship only on a play-off with Norm Roden.

INTERESTING SUGGESTION: An interesting suggestion that the district golf clubs should do something to introduce the unconverted to the pleasures of golf was made last week by Alex Hendry, president of the Royal Colwood club.

Speaking to the officials of the Colwood and Victoria clubs after their annual golf match, Mr. Hendry said that golf had given him such tremendous pleasure that he would like to help others in an introduction to the game.

R. R. Wilde, vice-president of Victoria, thought that some thought should be given to ways and means of doing this and suggested that a meeting of the officials of all city clubs should be held in September together with city professionals to work out a program. This was agreed.

CLUB ACTIVITIES: Mixed foursome evening competitions are becoming increasingly popular with bigger crowds than ever attending the golf-cum-social events. This week's mixed foursomes are at Uplands, Thursday evening, and Victoria, Friday evening.

Gorge Vale staged a cross-country golf event at the week-end with players holing out at the fourth, ninth, 12th, 14th and 18th holes only. Players plotted their own course from point to point, and the man who took the shortest cuts was popular secretary Leo Derman. Leo used his local knowledge to good effect to win the low gross at 41. The contest was voted good fun and is to be repeated.

VISITORS FROM UNITED STATES: Members of two United States golf clubs will be in the city at the weekend.

The Royal Colwood club has its annual match with Rainier of Seattle at Colwood Saturday while Gorge Vale and Port Angeles have a 16-aside match at Gorge on Sunday.

Return matches will be played later in the season.

MORRISON SHOOTS HOT ROUND: In the first of the July sweepstakes at the Victoria club Saturday Lionel Morrison shot a sultry 73 which, with his handicap of 10, made him a winner with a net 63. Just one stroke behind was L. J. Reilly who had 84 with his handicap of 20. Other prizewinners were: Les Pope (19) 67, Doug Abbott (9) 69, D. Wagg (16) 70, Lou Williams (10) 70, Hidden holes low, J. C. Ruttan; hidden holes high, Cliff Horwood. Another sweepstake will be held this Saturday.

VICTORIANS LUCKY: Members of Victoria golf courses may be sore about the damage done by last fall's early frost, but they are lucky in comparison with most of the clubs on the mainland.

The lovely Seattle course, where I played recently, has been particularly heavily hit. One green was completely killed and will not be in use this year, while a temporary green is also in use at another hole.

All over, the damage has been estimated at $40,000.

* * *

AIM AT B.C. CLOSED: It seems unlikely that Victoria will have any serious contenders for the PNGA tournament being played next week at Marine Drive, Vancouver. Most of the city top-liners are keeping themselves in readiness for the B.C. Closed Championship at Capilano, July 21-22.

* * *

CONSCIENTIOUS CADDIES: Harry Givan, Seattle's former Walker Cup golfer, recently made a trip to Japan where he played over a number of courses. He was telling his Victoria friends at the weekend that his most lasting impressions were of the Japanese caddies.

"They looked as if they were going to commit hari-kari if they failed to find the ball for their employer," said Harry.

The custom, too, in Japan is for the caddies to carry with them little bags loaded with soil and grass seed. Whenever a divot is lifted the caddy replaces what he can and seals the job off with the seed-soil mixture.

Maybe this is an idea for some of our local plowmen.

* * *

SMOOTH TRAP SURFACES: A number of local golfers have asked me to say this. Will all players please be good enough to smooth out trap surfaces after they have played out of sand.

It is the etiquette of the game to do so, and you never know when it may be your turn — at an important moment — to find yourself in a near unplayable lie in a sand bunker.

It takes very little effort but means a lot.

Future Home of Dodgers?

Future home games of the Brooklyn Dodgers may be played under a huge plastic dome, if current plans to replace the beloved but decaying Ebbets Field in Brooklyn are followed through. Architect Buckminster Fuller claims the cup-shaped roof over the field would be 300 feet high and 750 feet in diameter. The air-conditioned, all-weather sports centre would have seating capacity of more than 55,000. Cutaway view shows shadowless lighting equipment at top, the field, stands, passageways and shops in centre and the edge of an underground parking lot at bottom. —(CPC)

Major League Races Tighten As Third-Place Clubs Win Two

Only the third-place clubs in the American and National Leagues — the Cleveland Indians and Brooklyn Dodgers — were able to sweep their doubleheaders in yesterday's holiday baseball, and that tightened up both pennant battles.

Cleveland's pitching carried the Indians to 6-4 and 3-1 victories over Detroit Tigers, who have now lost 14 in a row in their home park. And Brooklyn virtually in a first-place tie, and moved the Indians within three and a half games of the first-place New York Yankees in the American League.

There were plenty of standout individual performances in the eight doubleheaders. Vic Wertz' 18th home run with two on in the eighth and Al Smith's two-run triple in the ninth gave Herb Score his eighth win in the first Cleveland game. Early Wynn took care of the second with a neat three-hitter.

Jim Piersall won the first game for Boston Red Sox against the Yankees, his 11th-inning single breaking a 6-6 tie. In the second game, Bill Skowron drove in three runs with a homer and single to lead the Yanks to a 9-4 verdict.

Mickey Mantle twisted his knee making a throw to the plate on Piersall's single. The injury was not considered serious but Mantle was rested in the second game.

Billy Pierce boosted his season's record to 13-2 and completed his seventh consecutive game as Chicago White Sox started the day with a 5-2 conquest of Kansas City Athletics to move within two and a half games of the Yanks. However, the As made three first-inning runs stand up in a 3-2 second game.

Don Newcombe returned to action for the Dodgers to win his 10th game, 15-3, as his mates shelled four Giant pitchers for 16 hits. Duke Snider hit his 19th home run and Roy Campanella hit his 10th in support of Newcombe. Nineteen-year-old Don Drysdale scattered nine hits to gain credit for the 6-1 second game win.

Navy Team Tops Island Marksmen

By EILEEN LEAROYD

The 72nd annual B.C. Rifle Association shoot held last week at Vancouver's Blair range is over and top contestants have a month to get ready for the Dominion of Canada matches to be held at Connaugh range, Ottawa, beginning Aug. 12.

Leading 24 in the provincial aggregate were chosen to represent B.C. in the national competition, where there is an entry of 700. Those finishing below 40th place have an opportunity to go if leading scorers drop out.

This is the first year the limit has been placed on 40th place.

Here are the standings in the Grand Aggregate down to 55th place:

1—Gunnar Westling, Vancouver, 824; 2—Jack Cramer, Vancouver, 813; 3—Ron Weeks, Kelowna, 805; 4—Frank Ball, Victoria, 796; 5—Joe Gibault, Williams Lake, 791; 6—Mrs. E. Learoyd, Victoria, 790; 7—Major Taylor Spittal, Victoria, 790; 8—Gerry Valleau, Nanaimo, 790; 9—Walter Burch, Victoria, 790; 10—Dr. C. G. Lemon, North Vancouver, 788; 11—Bob Walker, Victoria, 788; 12—F. G. Verchere, New Westminster, 785; 13—Roy Scott, Chilliwack, 785; 14—J. Lightburn, Mission, 786; 15—H. Palmer, 784; 16—F. E. Fuller, Vancouver, 782; 17—Ron Mecredy, Victoria, 781; 18—Noel Ribout, Victoria, 781; 19—Herb Chandler, Vancouver, 781; 20—Frank Drysdale, Victoria, 779; 21—Mary Robinson, Vancouver, 779; 22—G. Cross, Vancouver, 778; 23—Bill Kayne, Chilliwack, 778; 24—Yvonne Cousins, Penticton, 778; 25—Earl Jamieson, Vancouver, 777; 26—Walt Cousins, Penticton, 776; 27—George Farquharson, Kamloops, 774; 28—Duncan Payne, Victoria, 773; 29—R. W. Phillips, Vancouver, 771.

30—W. J. Conway, 770; 31—S. Bell, 769; 32—Bill Ruffell, Vancouver, 769; 33—Fran Morse, Victoria, 768; 34—A. N. Pilkey, Comox, 767; 35—G. C. Andrews, Victoria, 767; 36—Ralph Chandler, Vancouver, 766; 37—B. I. Barton, Vancouver, 766; 38—George Grivel, Victoria, 765; 39—W. C. Thorburn, Vancouver, 763; 42—J. R. Ross, Victoria, 763; 43—Ernie Work, Kamloops, 762; 44—E. M. MacKenzie, RCSME, 761; 45—A. Fast, 761; 46—R. L. Trowsdale, Summerland, 761; 47—Smokey Green, Vancouver, 761; 48—Mel Vogler, Chilliwack, 761; 49—S. M. Lee, 761; 50—H. W. S. Chandler, Vancouver, 760; 51—Red Ehret, Comox, 758; 52—R. A. Shore, Victoria, 757; 53—Major A. E. Evans, Victoria, 756; 54—Major J. Chambers, Vancouver, 754; 55—Capt. L. Palmer, Victoria, 753.

Marksmen were very lucky this year — not a drop of rain fell to dampen valuable equipment or make awkward conditions. But there were tricky, fishtailing winds which confused shooters right from 200 yards to the gruelling 900 and 1,000-yard mounds.

Vancouver Island sent a large contingent with representatives like Vic Finholm from Parksville, Capt. Dave Fyvie from Salt Spring island, Dave Thorburn and Gerry Valleau of Nanaimo and Red Ehret and A. N. Pilkey of Comox.

Majority of islanders however, came from such local units as the Canadian Scottish, the 5th Regiment and the RCN.

The outstanding island team was the navy, led by PO Frank Ball who finished fourth in the grand aggregate. CPO Walter Burch did some excellent shooting, coming ninth in the aggregate and taking the General Letson trophy by winning the Tyro aggregate.

Ball won three medals: bronze medal for high tyro in the first stage, silver medal for high tyro in the second stage and a gold medal for high tyro in the grand aggregate.

RCN team won the Tyro team trophy and placed high in the Infantry Association cup, the Lieutenant-Governor's team match, and the Services Twelve.

The RCAF team from Comox also did exceptionally well, with LAC A. N. Pilkey winning the Wood trophy as high novice shot. Pilkey placed 34th in the last aggregate.

The air force riflemen also won the Gallelly team match.

Red Ehret, a noted .22 shot who is fairly new to full-bore marksmanship, won the Tyro match with 48/50.

Many Victorians will be interested in knowing that Joe Gibault, former RCMP officer at Sidney, and now game warden at Williams Lake, attended the meeting. Joe, a pistol Master as well as a very hot shot with a .303 is a fine gunsmith and a ballistics expert.

Lieut. George Grivel, RCN, was elected president of the BCRA at the annual meeting, succeeding Major A. M. T. Spittal. Another honor was brought to the island when the position of team adjutant to Ottawa was offered to Major H. W. (Billy) Wood.

The meeting also passed a motion in favor of starting a fund to build a B.C. team hut on the range at Ottawa. Prime mover of the hut idea was Major A. M. T. Spittal. Sum of $310 has already been pledged.

And now to revert to the personal pronoun. It was mistakenly reported that I was the only "distaffer" to make the Ottawa team. Two other women were in the first 24, definitely making it, and one other placed 40th and will possibly go.

Mrs. Mary Robinson placed 21st, Miss Yvonne Cousins placed 24th and Mrs. Jackie Cramer placed 40th. All three have previously made the Ottawa team.

Mary Robinson and Jackie Cramer are both former Victorians, now living in Vancouver. Miss Cousins, who lives in Penticton, broke her tyro last year and this year won a shoot-off against her father, Walt Cousins, to take the Duff Stuart match.

Several other women attended the meeting, including Jean Mair of Victoria, Miss Ann Lee of Vancouver and Mrs. Yvonne Lemon of North Vancouver.

People often ask me about women who shoot and how they started in the sport. I believe most of them began through instruction by a brother, father or husband. Probably the most famous woman rifle shot in the world is Marjorie Foster of England, who won the King's Medal at Bisley in 1924. She is still shooting and may be competing at Ottawa this summer.

The first women to compete in organized rifle competitions in Canada, that I know of, were both Victorians — Mrs. Gwen Spencer-Heathy and Mrs. Jean Wiswell. Only woman to make the Canadian Bisley team is Miss Mary McLellan of Prince Edward island in 1951, although I understand Mrs. Heathy shot brilliantly and would have made Bisley if women had been allowed to qualify in former years.

Why people want to lie down on the hard ground and shoot away at stationary targets, is another question shooters are asked. It seems to me there is a beauty to it, as I suppose tennis players see a beauty in tennis and anglers see a beauty in fishing.

There is an excitement in seeing if you can guess the speed of the wind passing between you and your target so that you correct the sights to hit the bullseye. There is also the challenge of a bad shot, trying to do better next time.

There is the fresh air, the sun and wind and even the rain, and the particular beauty of white flags blowing down the range in the early morning. And that first moment of the day when (in a place like Ottawa) three hundred clean, white targets rise in one single movement.

*

Shooters have their legends and their storytellers, too, and the young people sit in an admiring circle and listen to how, back in 1910, Col. X or Sgt. Z made 15 straight bullseyes in the rain at 900 yards with a 30-minute wind blowing.

Well, almost before you know it, cordite smoke begins to smell like Chanel No. 5.

The annual rainfall in Nigeria ranges from 71 to 48 inches.

Al Balding Two Strokes Back

Welsh Pro Leads First Round of British Open

Denis Smalldon, 30-year-old Welsh professional champion, turned in a superb display of golf Wednesday to lead a strong international field with a record-equalling 68 in the first round of the British Open golf championships at Hoylake.

A stroke behind champion was Enrique Bertolini, champion of Argentina last year. Then came Al Balding of Toronto and Australia's Peter Thomson—attempting to become the first player in more than 70 years to win the title three years in succession—and a pair of Englishmen, Eric Lester and D. C. Thomas. All had one-under-par 70s.

Canada's other representative in the tournament, Stan Leonard of Lachute, Que., was four strokes out after a first-round 72. He was two-over-par going out but had eight pars and a birdie coming home.

Thomson had eight pars and a birdie going out and five pars, two birdies and bogies at the 17th and 18th holes coming in. Balding started out with three birdies in his first four holes but was in trouble several times on later holes.

Two of the four Americans were near the pace. Burly Mike Souchak came in with a figures going to the 16th hole of the tough, 6,960-yard Royal Liverpool course.

But he was upset on the 16th green by a loud screeching on a television camera tower and missed a short putt for a birdie. He bunkered his tee shot on the 17th and was too strong with his approach on the 18th, winding up with bogeys on both holes.

Gene Sarazen, the 1932 champion, fired a 78 which included 36 putts, and Peter Burke also came in at 78.

Bobby Locke of South Africa, a three-time champion, carded a 41-35—76 which included an eight on the par-four hole, where he took three shots to get out of a bunker. Henry Cotton of England, another three-time British Open winner, shot a steady 72.

Strike Causes Price Boost

Steel in Good Supply Here

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

The U.S. steel strike is not likely to have any immediate effect on the main steel users in the Victoria area.

Both Yarrow and VMD shipbuilding [illegible] are [illegible] on steel [illegible] and [illegible] in hand to meet [illegible] projects in hand.

We [illegible] are all right for [illegible] but if the U.S. strike does [illegible] and most [illegible] a shortage [illegible] in Victoria [illegible] we might be in difficulties.

Mr. Yarrow said that in the [illegible] he might [illegible] a month [illegible] the [illegible] but [illegible] would not be affected by the [illegible].

Yarrows have jobs in hand for B.C. Electric, B.C. Power Commission, Alcan and are constructing of scows for the fast growing pulp chip business.

T. A. Kennedy, sales manager of VMD said that the [illegible] would not be affected by the strike.

The strike has already caused increases in the prices of steel. Japanese steel already selling at premium prices, is expected to move even higher immediately, while one order fulfilled by a United States steel firm just before the strike deadline was at an increased price of 45 cents per 100 pounds.

The company will treat [illegible] sympathetic [illegible] the increase necessary.

Lesage and Bennett Reach Understanding

Preliminary Studies Slated for Huge Dam

By PETER BRUTON
Colonist Legislative Reporter

Hydro-electric development of the Columbia river appeared closer yesterday following discussions between federal Resources Minister Jean Lesage and Premier W A C Bennett.

It was agreed that a dam at Mica creek will be essential for any major development of power on the Upper Columbia in the future.

Engineering studies for a dam will be made soon without awaiting the outcome of negotiations between Canada and the U.S. on a treaty to settle the water problems.

Premier Bennett and Mr. Lesage met for [illegible] and late issued a joint statement.

Mr. Lesage and Premier Bennett also discussed problems concerning tides with the United States regarding waters which cross the international boundary," said the statement.

"It was agreed that in the circumstances, it is of the utmost importance for the future development of the province to ensure that the largest possible amount of power is derived from the hydro electric possibilities that are present and that this is done at the lowest possible cost."

The negotiations with the U.S. [illegible] were [illegible] of long standing importance to the province.

[illegible] that there may be [illegible] in agreeing on the [illegible] but it was agreed that it would be desirable to have [illegible] carried forward while the discussions are proceeding," the statement added.

Data Available

Mr. Lesage agreed to make [illegible] available [illegible] departments to help the provincial government and any other Canadian public interested in the development of the Upper Columbia for studies of all possible aspects of their work.

It appears the federal and provincial governments are making an earnest attempt to "bury the hatchet" since the Social Credit administration was thwarted in allowing Kaiser interests to build a dam last year.

"This will be on the understanding that any reports prepared will be made available to both the provincial and federal governments and will be without commitment as to the execution of any particular project by any entity," said the statement.

The premier and Mr. Lesage agreed that close liaison should be maintained between their officials as plans and discussions went ahead.

The proposed $250,000,000 Mica creek dam on the Big Bend of the Columbia will have its [illegible]

Bitter Verbal Fight Marks TLC Election

Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council last night elected after a sharp dispute about [illegible] eight officers to positions the council will fill when it merges with the Victoria Labor Council (CCL).

Council president Robert Barrie was elected first vice-president of the new council, also to be called the Victoria Labor Council (CLC). Percy Rayment, long time secretary of the TLC, was elected secretary-treasurer of the merged body by acclamation after two nominees dropped out.

Sharp arguments arose before the election when Arthur Lewis, a member of the auditing committee, stood after giving the financial statement that five locals had been three or more months behind in their dues.

He stated the auditors considered that the locals were [illegible] and that delegates could neither vote nor hold office.

Mayor Wants Action

Mayor Percy Scurrah will press the Capital Improvement District Commission at its first meeting today for a quick decision on the application of the city for $7,500 beautification grant.

The city wants to spend the money on improvements to Douglas street along the edge of Beacon Hill park.

Today's meeting has been described as purely organizational but Mayor Scurrah said yesterday, "I want to do more than that."

He said he hoped the commission would approve the Douglas street project at once "because we want to get going on it."

. . . Drifts Back To Beaches

City Garbage Litters Waterfront

A thin line of lemon and grapefruit remains, milk cartons, plastic containers and tin cans — hundreds, perhaps a few thousands of them if one had time and the motivation to make a census — garlanded part of the Dallas waterfront yesterday.

The Daily Colonist investigating waterfront residents' complaints that city garbage was washing ashore, found the trash string at the last high-water mark.

The fact that many of the tins were dented and to some extent squared, testified that they had had brief acquaintance with the city's clanking, admittedly inefficient garbage-crusher, and were not castaways from passing ships.

Mayor Percy Scurrah suggested that a freak wind or tide may have put the refuse ashore but added that the city would investigate and seek to correct the situation.

His suggestion appeared to be supported by shiny freshness of the cans at high-water mark and the comparative rarity of rusted old cans at higher levels of the beach.

"The machinery we have is inadequate," the mayor said. "We know that. But we are actively working on plans for a new set-up."

City engineer James Garnett, who visited the scene to see the garbage himself said the crusher would be checked but that it appeared to be failing to flatten or rip "only the odd can," since the collection on the shore represented only a small proportion of the number dumped daily at sea.

The city hopes to have a new garbage wharf early next year, he noted, with an efficient system of crushing by bulldozer.

New Director of Nursing Begins Appointment at Jubilee Hospital

Most women feel they are well occupied when they have taken those beds to make, but [illegible] Miss Mary L. Richmond is in charge of 60 beds in the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Miss Richmond only recently returned from Columbia University where she studied for her MA. [illegible]

MISS MARY L. RICHMOND [illegible]

"Yes, we still have a shortages of nurses," said Miss Richmond, "because hospitals are growing and we have more work than ever in spite of the fact that more and more nurses are in training."

[illegible]

Miss Richmond hopes to in[illegible] stitute a program of public education in what is required in nursing training and education.

She and her staff would be most interested for example, in speaking on the subject to civic clubs and lay groups. At the moment they do talk to high school students but they feel the adult groups have not been fully informed on the subject.

Teach Child Good Eating Habits That Will Likely Stay for Good

[illegible]

But some of it pertaining to children's diets, is most interesting. For instance, I was reading an article by the Nutrition Department of the Canadian Red Cross entitled "Eating by Instinct." The writer raises the controversial question as to whether or not without direction, it is possible to choose the foods necessary for health. Think it over for a moment. If you will, some years ago an experiment was carried out in Chicago and a number of children of differing ages, were allowed to select items of their choice from trays of food arranged in front of them. But only desirable foods were available, so we contend it was not a conclusive experiment by any manner of means.

In addition variety in texture, color contrasts and attractive service, this last point is too often overlooked when serving meals to children are all factors which encourage him to eat sensibly. Careful observation has certainly taught us that children enjoy natural, simple foods rather than fancy mixtures. Instill into a child the love of plain, nourishing food and the chances are it becomes a lifelong habit. To this day, as some of my readers know very well, I prefer brown bread and butter for afternoon tea. You can have all the fancy sandwiches and rich cakes! There are exceptions, a three-year-old who's a friend of mine has an unconquerable love of stuffed olives. It could hardly be the taste at that innocent age, of olives.

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Some of a night passes of temptation without a wet lease to be performed. At cast off one were short.

The gimmicks are used among the most glamorous talented actresses to be found in Hollywood or Broadway.

This gal can sure comply in Grace Kelly, Ann Blyth, Judy Garland, Betty Hutton, Tallulah Bankhead and dozens of others.

Naturally there's a catch. Only the backstage cast and crew will see these flimsy pictures as the TV shy opens pertoum between scenes back stage while changing costumes. But occasionally the camera picks them up.

Worst in Europe

London After Dark Teeming with Vice

LONDON (NANA) — The police of this city are now describing it as the most vice-ridden metropolis in Europe.

"Paris and Rome are just living on their laurels," a police officer said sardonically, "we long ago passed them in amount of vice.

"In some ways we are losing control of the situation," he added.

Before the war, an average of 3,000 women were arrested every year for soliciting in all of London. Last year, 7,200 arrests were made in the silk-stocking west end district alone.

DOORWAYS PACKED

Home owners on one of the better-known streets of the west end have organized in an attempt to rid their doorways of throngs of prostitutes congregating there every night.

An elderly man was struck by a car in Piccadilly while walking in the road. He told the police he had been unable to keep to the sidewalk because milling groups of prostitutes blocked the way.

The crux of London's vice problem is that a policeman cannot arrest a girl unless she actually accosts a man. It is no crime for a woman to stand on a street corner waiting to be approached. Usually, only the inexperienced fall into the trap of talking to the man first—he may be a plainclothesman.

FINE IS SMALL

Even if arrested, the worst a prostitute can suffer is a small fine on the technical charge of causing a public annoyance. She puts it down to business expenses and goes back to work.

The police estimate London has 7,000-8,000 "professionals" who earn about $24,000,000 a year. A few have been known to make as much as $600 a week. Unlike shop girls or factory workers, they can avoid the stiff British income taxes. During the last couple of years, there has been a substantial influx of foreigners, mainly French and Italian prostitutes, hounded out of business in their own countries, and West Indians.

By 6 p.m. and sometimes even earlier, they have taken over the pavements, not only in Piccadilly and Soho but also aristocratic Mayfair. Even on such sedate thoroughfares as Bond street and Oxford street, they are to be found every few feet.

NO SYNDICATES

Contrary to lurid newspaper stories that sometimes appear here, the police say there are no all-powerful crime syndicates controlling vice. The girls are usually independent operators. But they are well-organized, nevertheless. The majority have male "protectors."

A prostitute who tries to move into another's "territory" is swiftly driven out. If she resists, she is likely to be beaten up by the "protectors."

The girls live in one and two-room, cold-water apartments for which unscrupulous landlords charge as much as $100 a week. The police recently arrested nine of these landlords, including a woman, on charges of renting apartments for immoral purposes. The judge dismissed the case.

Mrs. Bennett Inspects Playgrounds

Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, wife of B.C.'s premier, visited two of Oak Bay's five supervised summer playgrounds yesterday.

She watched children working at handicrafts, painting, and participating in rhythm bands and gymnastics at Windsor and Carnarvon parks.

One of the youngsters presented Mrs. Bennett with a bouquet when she reached Windsor park.

Some 750 children enrolled at Carnarvon, Windsor, Willows, Lafayette and Firemen's parks which will continue under supervision until the end of this month.

Traffic Impeder Pays $10 Fine

RCMP conducted extensive traffic checks on the Island and Patricia Bay highways over the week-end resulting in a charge in Colwood court against Harry Radford, 1916 Bee.

He pleaded guilty to impeding traffic and was fined $10. Police said his speed of 30 miles an hour on the Island highway in Thetis Lake vicinity about 5.15 p.m. Monday created a line-up of 27 cars.

Williston Declares:

School Skills Vital to B.C.

Industry and education must work together to build B.C.'s future, Education Minister Ray Williston declared yesterday at opening ceremonies of the Summer School of Education at Lansdowne Junior High school.

He told the more than 1,500 teacher-students: "We need people with specific skills and ability as well as character."

The key to B.C.'s progress is in the classroom, he added.

Past directors of the school, Dr. H. L. Campbell, Dr. C. B. Conway and Dr. W. H. Johnson, were introduced by the present director, Prof. Robert T. Wallace.

The teacher-students were also welcomed by Willard Ireland, vice-chairman of Victoria College Council, and Humphrey Golby, chairman of the Greater Victoria school board.

The five-week session of classes, covering 80 courses, began immediately after conclusion of the ceremonies.

Brown-Stained Coastal Waters Due to Flowering Sea Plants

A weird discoloration in coastal waters—from north of Nanaimo to Finlaysdh Arm and adjacent waters—has most observers baffled.

The Pacific Biological Station at Nanaimo knows what it is but not why it is so heavy.

The waters are turned a red-dish-brown color, particularly thickly discolored in some swimming spots, like Yellow Point. It is very noticeable at Brentwood.

Fred Taylor, of the biological station, said the discoloration was caused by phyto plankton, or the bloom of microscopic sea plants.

"We get some blooms every year but they are particularly heavy this year," he said.

"We don't know the reason for this, except that conditions for the plants apparently were ideal. It may have been the recent few days of sunshine after a long, dull period," he said.

Grounded Craft Returned Home

Pat Strachan, owner of the White Cloud, berthed his craft at Fishermen's Wharf late Tuesday afternoon after being grounded Monday night on a reef off Albert Head.

Mr. Strachan swam a few yards to shore to obtain help.

The craft was refloated at high tide without damage.

Decision Pending On Wage Increase

It may be at least 10 days before there is any decision by the Street Railwaymen's Union or B.C. Electric Co. with respect to conciliation board recommendation that wages be increased 28½ cents an hour.

The SRU has indicated it will recommended acceptance of the report to bus drivers, maintenance workers and certain building employees concerned.

Arrangements will be made for a membership vote.

The company will not make a decision for at least a week. There was no comment on whether the conciliation report, if accepted, would cause a decision to apply for increased bus fares.

The conciliation report affects employees in Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster. The recommended increase is spread over two years.

Present basic wage for drivers is $1.67½. The union requested an increase to $2 an hour.

Keep your wee one cool and comfy in 3-piece Rompers
Made of cool, soft plisse, they'll be happy in these, no matter how hot or humid the weather is! Styled with short sleeves, small, tiny collar, button back, the pants are buttoned onto the top for quick changes. And for those changes . . . you have an extra pair of pants included. Another nice thing, plisse washes so well and doesn't require any ironing! In sizes 1-2, choose white top with blue or yellow pants. Regular price 2.49. Sale Price 1.66
Dainty wee nylon dresses
In summer shades of blue, yellow, white and pink. In either sheer nylon or puckered nylon, both look so sweet on and require so little care. They have the round neck with lace trim, short puffed sleeves, gathered skirt with embroidery on front bodice. In sizes 6-1-2. Regular price 2.49. Sale Price, each 1.88
Cosy soft flannelette nightgowns
Made of very light-weight flannelette that washes well and won't shrink. In infants' size only. Subs of Reg. 49c line. Sale Price 3 for $1
Esmond Cloth Blankets
With deep satin binding, have the nursery patterns or plain colors. They are substandards but the flaws are so slight they won't impair the wear. In yellow, pink, green and blue. Size 36"x50". Regular price 3.98. Sale Price 2.66 and 2.99
Cotton and flannelette contour sheets! Subs Reg. 1.89 line
Will give baby undisturbed rest for they stay flat all the time and won't wrinkle. In white, pink, blue and yellow. Size 28"x54". Sale Price $1
Flannelette Sheets
With whipped edges in pink and blue checks, are good wearing and wash well. In bassinette or carriage size. 30"x36". Regular price 1.49. Sale Price 1.18
